

20 Glum And Oddly-Garbed Reich Leaders Now On Trial

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Nuernberg, Nov. 20 (AP)—A score of glum, oddly-garbed henchmen of Adolf Hitler went on trial for their lives today before the international war crimes tribunal and heard the reading of the first two counts of the lengthy indictment against them—a receipt of plunder and horror.

The tribunal recessed for luncheon at 12:33 p. m. (6:33 a. m., EST) with the reading of the indictment still unfinished.

It appeared that completion of the reading of the 35,000-word document would require the remainder of the day.

Rudolf Hess, an almost impish grin playing about his sunken mouth, was lined up in the dock with the Nazi defendants—20 in all. The 21st, Martin Bormann, Hitler's deputy, is being tried in absentia.

What disposition the tribunal would make of the reports of alienists on Hess' mental condition had yet to be announced. But the former Hitler deputy seemed at moments almost frivolous as the proceedings got under way.

Like Cast of Beggars
After the recess, British Lord Justice Geoffrey Lawrence, presiding, announced the trial would continue without the presence of Ernst Kaltenbrunner, former Nazi security police chief, who has suffered a cranial hemorrhage.

The black gowned defense attorneys listened intently to every word that was spoken, but their clients, as strangely garbed as a cast of beggars in an opera, exhibited varying emotions.

From the paunchy prima donna of Nazism, Hermann Goering himself, to the quiet, relatively obscure propaganda ministry's handyman, Hans Fritzsche, the defendants listened with varying emotions as lurid deed after lurid deed of the Third Reich was reconstructed in English prose.

There were no legal furbelows at the start of the historic case in the small, oak paneled courtroom whose windows overlooked the one-time shrine city of Nazidom.

Important To World
Lord Geoffrey Lawrence, British judge who is presiding, told the defendants Britain, the United States, the Soviet Union and France had been enraptured with the punishment of war criminals, adding: "This trial which is about to begin is unique in the history of jurisprudence and in importance to people all over the world."

Sidney S. Alderman, assistant to Chief U. S. Prosecutor Justice Robert H. Jackson, opened the proceedings by reading a condensed version of the indictment. His voice trembled with nervousness.

The defendants stared glumly during the lengthy reading of the indictment. Hess, Ribbentrop, Keitel, and Rosenberg listened without using the translators' earphones provided for each man on trial.

Goering, his fat countenance exhibiting bored composure, soon removed his headphones. Grand Admiral Erich Raeder and Walther Funk, former Reichsbank president, continued to use the American translating device.

Jew-Baiter Startled
Goering nodded non-committally when Prosecutor Alderman referred to his overriding control of German economy in preparation for armed aggression after 1936.

The prosecution tables were crowded. Justice Jackson sat at the head of the United States delegation. Sir David Maxwell-Pyfe headed Britain's delegation while Col. Yuri Pokrovsky and Charles DuBois were sitting as temporary chief prosecutors for Russia and France.

At Alderman's mention of anti-Jewish fulminations during the pre-war period by Alfred Rosenberg, that defendant hurriedly replaced his earphones. Julius Streicher, No. 1 Nazi Jew-baiter, sat bolt upright when he was named in the indictment.

Serious Crimes
Goering nodded with emphasis when the prosecutor recalled his announcement of 10 years ago that Germany was building a military airforce.

Prosecutor Alderman concluded the reading of the first count of (Please Turn to Page 6)

Memorial Services For Pfc. McIlhenny
Memorial services for Pfc. James H. McIlhenny, son of Mrs. H. M. McIlhenny, 430 Carlisle street, will be held Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the Presbyterian church. Pfc. McIlhenny, who was an officer and member of the church, was killed in action in the Siegfried line on March 22 while serving in a rifle company of the 103rd (Cactus) Division of the Seventh Army.

Sunday's service will be conducted by the Rev. Seth C. Morrow, a former pastor of the local church who is now pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Pottsville.

ANNUAL MEET OF COUNTY LIBRARY NEXT TUESDAY

Election of directors, action upon proposed changes in the constitution and by-laws and consideration of plans for the new year are principal items of business on the agenda for the first annual meeting of the membership of the Adams County Free Library association to be held next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the court house.

All members of the association—there are more than 3,500—have a right to attend and cast votes in the election and on the by-law changes. Interested non-members also are invited to attend. President O. H. Benson will preside at the meeting.

To Fill Directorate
One-year terms of Mrs. E. S. Lewars, Gettysburg; Mrs. Q. W. Hershey, York Springs; and Miss Marion J. Biggs, Orrtanna, association secretary, expire and their positions are to be filled.

The positions resigned by Mrs. Brenda Walker, Littlestown, and Albert Weaver, McSherrytown, on the board remain vacant and are to be filled at the meeting next Tuesday. These recently appointed directors, who filled vacancies until the annual membership meeting are up for re-election or replacement: D. E. Winebrenner, New Oxford; Miss Anna Hull, East Berlin, and the Rev. Nevin Frantz, Arendtsville. All of the retiring directors are eligible for re-election.

A nominating committee report will be presented by Dr. Robert A. Bream, chairman. Residence restrictions limit Gettysburg to two members of the board and provide that no other borough or township may have more than one member on the board.

48 Reservations For C. C. Dinner
Forty-eight reservations had been made today for the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce membership dinner to be held at 6:30 o'clock this evening at the Blue Parrot Tea Room.

The report of the nominating committee will be followed by election of directors. A turkey dinner will be served.

Weather Forecast
Clear and cold tonight with low-est about 36 degrees. Wednesday increasing cloudiness and slightly warmer.

Union Thanksgiving Service Wednesday

A union Thanksgiving prayer service will be held at the Mt. Zion United Brethren church, near Mt. Holly Springs on Wednesday night. The participating churches are those on the Mt. Tabor United Brethren charge, the Rev. Charles R. Miller, pastor, which consists of the Mt. Tabor church, Clines church and Mt. Zion church. The service will begin at 8 o'clock.

Special music will be presented by the several churches participating. The Mt. Zion church is beginning mid-week prayer services, which were suspended during the war because of travel difficulties. The Thanksgiving service is the initial service.

Mr. Luhrs was the first secretary of the organization and had served in that capacity since the formation of the Fellowship.

The new secretary-treasurer is Dr. J. Walter Coleman, superintendent of the Gettysburg National Military Park, who was the speaker at Monday's luncheon.

The other newly-elected officers are: First vice president, Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, Gettysburg, and second vice president, John Starr, Millersburg, Pa.

Plan Activities
About 25 persons attended the luncheon on the 82nd anniversary of the delivery of the Gettysburg Address and heard Doctor Coleman recount bits of "Lincoliana" with which he had become familiar through his duties in the National Park Service. Dr. C. Perry Powell, Everett, orator of the day, immediately after delivering the immortal words.

Devoting most of his time to the background and details of the assassination, Mr. Baker told of the conspirators' plot and failures at kidnaping Lincoln and their various plans for his assassination.

Back Carlisle Club
Fifty members and guests of the club attended the dinner meeting at the Marine restaurant with President Glenn L. Bream presiding. The guests included Murray B. Frazee, Sr., and Paul Dougherty, former members of the club, and Jack Myles, Reno, Nev., all formerly in the armed forces.

At the request of the Carlisle Lions club, the local Lions directed their secretary, Robert Smith, to write Senators Guffey and Myers and Congressman Gross asking them to use their influence with the War Department to have the Army Medical school retained at Carlisle Barracks. Recent news reports from Washington told of plans to move the army medical post to a southern state.

The Lions voted to omit their regular meeting next Monday and meet Tuesday evening with the Soroptimist club at their Friendship dinner at the Hotel Gettysburg when the women's service club will mark its seventh birthday anniversary.

DISCHARGED VET, YOUTH ENLIST
The Army recruiting station in the Post Office building here reported today the enlistment of one recently discharged veteran of World War II and a 17-year-old Biglerville high school football player.

Corporal Robert L. Carter, 2 York street, who was discharged October 27 at the Presidio army post, San Francisco, has re-enlisted and is now at his home here on a 90-day leave. He is married and the father of two sons.

During his service, Carter was attached to a Signal Service battalion and was stationed at Presidio for some time.

The other volunteer is James C. Sillick, center on the Biglerville varsity football squad. He is 17 years old and a member of Troop C, Pennsylvania State Guard. Solo trumpeter in the Biglerville school band, he is also bugler for the guard unit. He played both football and basketball for Biglerville high. He is being sent to Harrisburg for a final physical examination.

The enlistments were announced by Corporal Kenneth Lieb who is in charge of the local recruiting office open daily at the federal building.

PROBE ATTACK REPORT
Borough police continued their investigation today of a report that a seven-year-old Gettysburg girl was grabbed by two boys on Baltimore street at 6:30 Monday evening. The report said the boys dropped a wash basket they were carrying, tore the child's clothing, then ran away.

PLAN TO MARRY
Preston Nevin Myers, Abbottstown R. 1, and Betty Mae Boose, Hanover, have filed application for a marriage license in York.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT
Mr. and Mrs. John Beard, Gettysburg R. 2, announce the birth of a daughter Monday evening at the Warner hospital.

HENRY E. LUHRS NEW PRESIDENT OF FELLOWSHIP

Henry E. Luhrs, Shippensburg businessman, was elected president of the Lincoln Fellowship of Pennsylvania at the annual Lincoln Speech anniversary dinner meeting of that organization here Monday afternoon. He succeeds Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg college, who has been president of the Fellowship since its organization about six years ago.

Mr. Luhrs was the first secretary of the organization and had served in that capacity since the formation of the Fellowship.

The new secretary-treasurer is Dr. J. Walter Coleman, superintendent of the Gettysburg National Military Park, who was the speaker at Monday's luncheon.

The other newly-elected officers are: First vice president, Dr. Robert Fortenbaugh, Gettysburg, and second vice president, John Starr, Millersburg, Pa.

LOCAL SOCIETY HEARS TALK BY MRS. SYMONDS
Mrs. F. Campbell Symonds, who for eight years served in a mission at Hyden, Ky., was the guest speaker at the November meeting of the Women's Missionary society of the Presbyterian church Monday afternoon at the church. Mrs. Symonds' husband is now with the National Mission board in New York city. Mrs. Harold J. Pegg introduced the speaker.

The meeting opened with the singing of "Open My Eyes That I May See," following which Mrs. Donald P. McPherson, Sr., who was in charge of the devotional period, read part of the 12th chapter of St. Mark and gave the prayer.

Mrs. Howard McCarney sang, "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked," accompanied by Mrs. J. E. Sanderson.

It was announced that $42.06 had been received in the weather bags which were turned in last month. It was also announced that a Christmas box had been sent to a child of the occupied countries.

The president, Mrs. Rudolph Rosenstengel, presided. A social hour was held at the close of the meeting with Mrs. J. P. Dalbey, Mrs. Thelma Long, Mrs. Ross Myers, Mrs. H. M. McIlhenny, Mrs. John Snyder, and Mrs. Edward Utz serving as hostesses.

SEEK DAMAGE CASE RETRIAL
Motion for a new trial on the grounds that the verdict for the defendants in the case of Harold C. Gabler, Chambersburg, against Paul and Dwight Strausbaugh, Gettysburg, returned in court here Saturday afternoon, was against the law, and against both the evidence and the weight of evidence, was filed at the office of Adams County Prothonotary Arthur H. Shields Monday afternoon.

Gabler sued for damages of more than $3,000 for repair to his truck and loss of profits during the time it was idle, following a crash on the Westminster-Reisterstown highway January 19, 1944. The defendants appeared as executors of the estate of their father, Edward F. Strausbaugh. Gabler's truck ran into a truck owned by the late Mr. Strausbaugh while the latter vehicle was stopped.

The motion for the new trial was filed by Franklin R. Bigham, Esq., as attorney for Gabler.

BULLETINS
Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—The army announced today that a B-29, winging its way eastward from Guam, has set a non-stop distance record—and is still flying. The B-29 passed over La Cross, Wis., at 9:30 a. m. EST. This is 7,368 miles from Guam, the Army Air Forces said. The Superfortress had broken the record at that point. The B-29 is expected to arrive at Washington National airport at about 1:30 p. m. (EST) today.

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—Management spokesmen, complaining of what they termed "unrealistic" work being done in committees of the Labor-Management Conference hinted today they might file separate reports for conference consideration. This development came as the "big six"—the heads of the two industry and four labor organizations represented—took action designed to prevent any (Please Turn to Page 2)

Accused Jap War Criminal Commits Hara-Kiri In Office
By RUSSELL BRINES
Tokyo, Nov. 20 (AP)—Baron Gen. Shigeru Honjo, accused war criminal and reputed ris-gleader in the conquest of Manchuria, committed hara-kiri today less than 24 hours after he was ordered arrested.

The baron was lying on his right side in a pool of blood in his office at the former Japanese war college when Allied reporters and photographers arrived.

Blood still oozed from the body and the hilt of his ceremonial sword was thrust up from the sheet which partly covered the body. A small cup containing tea dregs was beside the body.

The old-line officer performed the Japanese hara-kiri ritual by slashing his stomach cross wise, then cutting his throat.

But instead of the ritualistic ki-mono, Hono wore his army uniform. His upthrust boots were highly polished.

Honojo, one of 11 war leaders of the past imperialistic decade ordered imprisoned yesterday, died shortly after his secretary found his slashed body on his office floor.

"I cannot endure as a soldier of our country to appear before a court of Allied powers," Honjo said in a letter written shortly before he killed himself.

"I find no way of apologizing to his majesty and the people for bringing my nation to such a miserable state of affairs.

"It grieves my heart when I think of the surviving families of our men who died on battlefields. x x x

"I therefore have decided to seek death."

The letter, addressed to his secretary, Kawamura, said it was Honjo's desire that his eldest son, Kazou, not succeed to his title of baron.

The retired general, who was serving as president of the organization for relief of demobilized soldiers, had gone to his office early this morning as usual although the organization had been ordered abolished by MacArthur.

The 69-year-old Honjo's eldest son told Kyodo news agency that his father learned of the arrest order only when he read a morning newspaper and feared he would be tried as a war criminal.

SAYS LATE FDR WANTED FLEET KEPT AT PEARL

By JACK BELL
Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—The late Navy Secretary Frank Knox predicted on January 24, 1941, that if war with Japan occurred, hostilities might begin with a surprise attack upon the Pacific fleet or the naval base at Pearl Harbor.

His prediction was made in a letter to Henry L. Stimson, then secretary of war, and was disclosed in an exchange of correspondence made public today by the congressional Pearl Harbor investigating committee.

The Knox letter, dated more than 10 months prior to the Japanese strike at the base, said that "if war eventuates with Japan, it is believed easily possible that hostilities would be initiated by a surprise attack upon the fleet or the naval base at Pearl Harbor."

Urged Readiness
"In my opinion," Knox wrote, "the inherent possibilities of a major disaster to the fleet or naval base at Pearl Harbor."

who testified today that the late President Roosevelt wanted to keep the fleet at Pearl Harbor, visited Gettysburg when the site for the General Longstreet memorial was dedicated.

base warrant taking every step, as rapidly as can be done, that will increase the joint readiness of the army and navy to withstand a raid of the character mentioned above."

Stimson replied in a letter dated Feb. 7, 1941, concurring as to the importance of the matter and "the urgency of our making every possible preparation to meet such a hostile effort."

Admiral J. O. Richardson testified today the late President was "rather loathe" to increase the manpower of the Pacific fleet in mid-summer, 1940.

Richardson recounted a series of conferences he held with the President, Cordell Hull, then secretary of state, and others shortly after the fall of France.

The bespectacled admiral, who was relieved of command of the Pacific fleet 10 months before the Japanese sneak attack, testified that in a three-hour conference at the White House on July 8, 1940 he stressed what he felt was the need for more men to man the ships of the fleet.

Kept Fleet In Harbor
"The President was rather loathe to increase the number of men because he felt, as he expressed it to me, that men in mechanical trade in civilian life could be quickly inducted and made into adequate sailors if their services became necessary," Richardson told the committee.

He testified yesterday he had urged President Roosevelt at a latter conference to order the fleet returned to the west coast and stripped for action as a deterrent to Japan. But he said the President wanted the fleet kept at Pearl Harbor.

Thanksgiving Service At Fairfield Church
The annual Fairfield Thanksgiving service will be held at 8 a. m. Thanksgiving Day at the Fairfield Mennonite church. The Rev. Norman Wolf, pastor of the Zion Lutheran church, will preach the sermon.

Other pastors participating will be the Rev. S. John Ehrhart and George Stoneback. Arthur Roth will sing a tenor solo. Miss Mabert Benner will preside at the organ. The Thanksgiving offering will be given to aid war-sufferers in Europe.

The public is invited.

LICENSED TO WED
Miss Lorain Ruth, of near Thomsville, and Eugene H. Krout, of near Spring Grove, have secured a marriage license in York. Miss Ruth graduated from East Berlin high school in 1940.

SEKS DIVORCE
Eugene A. Baughman, Hanover, has filed suit for divorce from Romaine A. Baughman, Midway, in York county court.

Two Injured In Head-On Collision

Automobiles operated by Ruth E. Decker, 18, Aspers R. D., and Donald Rouser, 22, Guernsey, collided head-on, on the crest of a grade two miles north of Biglerville on the Guernsey-Aspers road at 12:30 p. m. Monday, according to state police.

Miss Decker suffered bruised knees and forehead and John Thomas, 25, Aspers R. D., a laceration of his tongue. He was riding with Miss Decker. Damage to the cars was estimated at $300.

State police said both drivers would be cited for driving to the left of the center line of the highway.

POLICE CHIEF GIVES TIPS ON SAFER DRIVING
Declaring that automobile accidents will mount during the approaching winter months unless greater care is used in driving, Chief of Police Robert C. Harpster today gave several tips for safer winter driving.

"Adjust speed to conditions," Chief Harpster urged. "Slow down well in advance of intersections and curves. Signal intention to turn or to stop. Follow other vehicles at safe distances. Put on tire chains when roads are slippery with snow or ice. They provide 'go' traction and reduce braking distances 40 to 50 per cent."

Chief Harpster also urged motorists to make sure windshield wipers and defrosters "really work," and said drivers should apply brakes lightly and intermittently on icy roadways.

Harder To Stop
"Remember," he said, "that braking distances on ice and snow without anti-skid chains are lengthened from four to 11 times. Wet ice at near-melting temperatures is twice as slippery as dry ice at near zero."

Judging from his own department's records, and from studies made by the National Safety Council, the chief said he based his forecast for an increase in the accident rate on the following facts:

Traffic accident rates from 36 northern states were 24 to 53 per cent higher in winter than in summer during recent years.

More Cars On Road
The accident rate this year has risen sharply since lifting of gasoline rationing in mid-August. More cars are going more miles, and faster, with increased exposure to traffic dangers.

Today the average car is eight years old, and more than one-half of all tires running are four years old. A great many vehicles are unsafe for any but the most careful use.

"Many drivers become involved in costly mishaps or near-accidents," Chief Harpster emphasized. "Wise motorists will prepare to overcome winter's twin hazards, poor traction and reduced visibility. Preparation will include checking and servicing of standard and special vehicle equipment for winter use, especially brakes, tire chains, windshield wipers, heaters, defrosters, lights, and exhaust and cooling systems. The car owner who keeps his or her vehicle in good repair for winter driving has already won half the battle."

XMAS SEALS ON SALE THIS WEEK
A typical American holiday scene, showing a boy carrying a holiday wreath to his home is pictured on the 1945 Christmas Seals which will be placed on sale this week.

A slogan of the united local, state and national tuberculosis associations, "Protect Your Home From Tuberculosis" is symbolized in the Christmas Seal design, according to Dr. L. C. Keefeauver, president of the Adams County Tuberculosis society.

"Tuberculosis is a post-war problem which vitally affects every family and every home," Dr. Keefeauver said.

"The Christmas Seal sale is conducted largely by mail. This is the best method of reaching most persons and giving them an opportunity to participate in tuberculosis control work. Postal authorities have always taken an interest in our campaign and have been extremely helpful.

"The Tuberculosis society expresses deep appreciation of the contribution which postal employees have made each year to this campaign. It was a postal clerk who first thought of selling Christmas Seals to aid the sick and who promoted the first Seal Sale in Denmark in 1904," said the county chairman.

INFANTRY BAND SHOW HERE ON DECEMBER 6TH

Adams county's Victory Loan bond premiere will be held December 6 in the Majestic theatre, it was announced today by Sydney J. Poppay, theatre manager and special events chairman of the Adams County War Finance committee. The feature of the show is two hours of entertainment by the Combat Infantry band, whose members have come from battle fronts all over the world. This band, which appeared recently at Carnegie Hall, New York, has frequently played on national radio programs, is well known to listeners of the Army Hour.

Variety Show
The organization, sometimes called the "Million-Dollar Band" because of its record of War Bond sales in previous tours, presents a varied stage show of jazz, battle tunes and classical music ranging from marches to violin solos. Vocal selections are presented by a choral group of 24 men. A baritone and tenor are also featured. Novelty selections spice the program.

Music of the Combat Infantry band reflects the war experience of its membership. Songs popular in the frontlines are numbered in its repertoires. One selection is a Fiji chant sung in native tongue by infantrymen who learned the tune and words in the Fiji Islands.

Tickets for Bonds
The 60 soldier-musicians who compose the organization have served overseas. A number of the bandsmen have won decorations.

The band is directed by Chief Warrant Officer Chester E. Whiting, of Medford, Mass., an army musician for 16 years. He is assisted by Warrant Officer (j.g.) Robert C. Lewis, of Salem, N. J., a graduate of the Army Bandmaster school.

Tickets of admission will be available through the exchange of Victory Bond certification forms.

LEGION PLANS TO HOLD DANCE
Albert J. Lentz Post No. 202, American Legion, voted Monday evening to hold a dance at the Hotel Gettysburg annex February 22 and to give away an automobile on that date. A committee was appointed by Commander W. E. Geiselman for the affair.

The post formerly held a dance on Armistice Day, and awarded a new automobile. This was interrupted by the war, when new cars were no longer available. Commander Geiselman said the post had been assured that it will be able to obtain a car by February 22.

Appointed to the committee were Leroy Winebrenner, Lawrence Sheads, Morris Gitlin, Albert Cardenti, Hobson Crouse, Eugene Phiel, Glenn Guice and Harry Troxell.

Fifty-five members attended the meeting Monday evening in the post rooms, and 47 new applications for membership, all from veterans of World War II, were accepted. Refreshments were served following the meeting.

The post will hold a turkey banquet for members only on November 28. Commander Geiselman announced. Dinner will be served between 5:30 and 9:30 p. m.

Recover One Of Two Stolen Car Hubcaps
A report in The Gettysburg Times Monday of the theft of two hubcaps from the automobile of John Sheads, 141 East Middle street, while the car was parked in front of his home Sunday night resulted in the recovery late Monday of one of the caps.

Chief of Police Robert C. Harpster said the hubcap was found at West Middle and South Washington streets by the son of Assistant Fire Chief Raymond Bisbing, who returned it to him.

HOSPITAL REPORT
Irene Butt, 209 West Middle street; Mrs. James Beard, Gettysburg R. 2, and James Kile, Biglerville, have been admitted as patients to the Warner hospital. Those discharged were Mrs. James Mauston, Gettysburg R. 1; Mrs. Harry Baker and infant daughter, Patricia Elaine, Table Rock, and Mrs. Jacob Appler and infant son, Douglas Ronald, 30 Baltimore street.

REPORTER SAYS WAR LORDS OF REICH CROOKED

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

One of the outstanding characteristics of the Japanese and German war lords, as is being brought out in the Pearl Harbor investigation and through the discovery of secret Nazi records, is their cold-blooded duplicity.

There was (and is) no honesty among them. We see that in the callous trickery which Hitler, Goering and other Nazi leaders used in annexing little Austria, while they kept the rest of Europe quiet with doubletalk. We see it in the Jap treachery in striking at Pearl Harbor behind the shield of peace negotiations at Washington.

Every day emphasizes the necessity of removing these war-mongers from society. It's gratifying therefore to see the Nuernberg trials of top Nazis opening today before the International War Crimes tribunal.

It's equally satisfactory (and forgive me if I'm wrong) to learn that Baron General Honjo, reputed head of the militarists who staged the conquest of Manchuria, has committed hara-kari rather than face trial as a war criminal along with numerous other militarists whom General MacArthur has ordered imprisoned pending their appearance before the Allied Court of Justice.

Better Without Honjo

Far be it from us to gloat over Honjo's suicide. As a matter of fact it must be admitted that it takes a deuce of a lot of courage to rip your body open with a sword and then cut your throat to end the job. Still the world will be a better place without Honjo—and without his gang who will come to trial in due course.

However, I don't think we should be very astute analysts if we placed the entire Japanese nation in the same category as Honjo.

For instance, there seems no reason to doubt Envoy Kurosu's word when he says that he and Nomura were doing an honest job of negotiating in Washington when the Jap war lords knifed Pearl Harbor. Kurosu and Nomura say they didn't know an attack was to be made. Let's give them the benefit of any doubt.

But the Jap militarists were born crooked.

While I was stationed in London in 1916 as correspondent I received word from New York that Wall Street was much disturbed over a phenomenon which they couldn't explain. It was a steady flow of gold to Japan, which was one of the Allies. The Japs clearly were collecting gold—but why?

I took this problem to an American banker operating in London.

That night in his den he unfolded an amazing story. The British bankers also had noted the flow of gold to Japan many months before. There were a lot of angles to the operation—movement of securities and so on—but the financial experts finally put the jig-saw puzzle together. When they had it assembled they got a shock. All the evidence indicated that the Japs were getting ready to desert the Allies and switch to Germany.

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Guy A. Snodgrass, of Woodbine, Pa., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Mildred, to William Y. Fleck, son of Mrs. Mary M. Fleck, 22 York street. The wedding will take place during the Christmas holidays.

Weddings

Miss Ruth Elizabeth E. Leer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael P. Leer, York Springs R. D. 2, and Edward I. Livingston, son of Edward I. Livingston, East Berlin R. D. 1, were married Saturday morning at 10 o'clock in the Lutheran parsonage, Dover. The double ring ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. J. H. Hege. They were attended by Miss Mildred Leer, a sister of the bride as maid of honor, and Martin Livingston, a brother of the bridegroom as best man.

Following the ceremony a luncheon for the immediate families was served at the home of the bride's parents, by her sister, Mrs. Robert Stonestier, Baltimore, after which the newlyweds left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, N. Y., and places of interest in the New England states. The bride is a graduate of the Eichelberger senior high school, Hanover, and is employed at the Naval Supply Depot, Mechanicsburg. The bridegroom is a graduate of the Dillsburg high school, and is engaged in farming for his father.

Yohe-Crook

Miss Loretta Jennie Crook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Crook, East Berlin R. D. 2, and John E. Yohe, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Yohe, Wellsville R. D. 1, were married Sunday at 1 p. m. in the Lower Meridian Lutheran church by the Rev. Ralph Meckley. The single ring ceremony was performed. The bride's father gave her in marriage.

Miss Miriam Yohe, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and the bridegroom's cousin, Clair Myers, was best man. Horace Baker and Paul Livingston served as ushers. Preceding the ceremony a short recital was given by Mrs. Margaret Franquist, followed by two duets by Mrs. Vina Creswell and Mrs. Lewis Elliot. A reception was held at the brides home after the ceremony, after which the couple left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls. She is a graduate of the East Berlin high school, class of 1945, and was employed at the Dentists' Supply company plant in York. The bridegroom was graduated from Wellsville high school in 1943 and the East Berlin high school in 1944. He is now employed on his father's farm. The couple will reside at the bridegroom's home for the present.

Stepp-Dietz

Miss Nila Malinda Dietz, Enhaut, formerly of East Berlin, R. D., and Melvin Edward Stepp, Oberlin, who served in the South Pacific theatre of war, were married Saturday at 2 p. m. by the Rev. J. H. Hege, at the Lutheran parsonage, Dover.

The double ring ceremony was used. The couple was unattended. They left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls. On their return they will be at home to friends in Oberlin.

ROTARIANS HEAR WAR MAP EDITOR

Illustrating the great increase in the importance of maps in military operations, Larry Kennison, map editor for the Navy's War Mapping project at the Lee-Meade inn, told local Rotarians Monday evening that Civil War generals might have carried maps for the battle here in their hip pockets but that charts for the Pacific campaign alone in the last war weighed 2,000 tons.

Thirty-three Rotarians and three guests heard Mr. Kennison tell of the war mapping project here and of the difficulties encountered and the solutions found. One of the most difficult problems, he said, was to map accurately the contours of underwater coral reefs for use of invading forces. The key importance of such data was demonstrated at Tarawa, he said.

Mr. Kennison also spoke of the importance of maps and charts in the development of civilization. He said the most marked improvements in mapping techniques have come in the last two decades.

President James S. Cairns presided at the meeting with M. W. Corle, Altoona, and Guy Rehnert, Boyertown, as guests. In observance of the Lincoln speech anniversary, Dr. R. S. Saby repeated Lincoln's Gettysburg address for the clubmen. Dr. C. H. Johnson introduced the principal speaker.

EASTERN EIGHT ORGANIZE NEW "IVY" LEAGUE

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 20 (AP)—For the first time since they began meeting each other on the gridiron in the 1870s, eight leading educational institutions of the east have banded together to play football under the terms of a formal agreement, beginning next season.

They are Brown, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Yale, Princeton and the University of Pennsylvania, all of which have signed an agreement "for the purpose of continuing college football in such a way as to retain the value of the game while keeping it in fitting proportion to the fundamental purposes of academic life," it was announced today.

Freshmen were barred from varsity competition and post-season games were banned under two of the stipulations of the agreement.

All except Brown have been recognized unofficially as members of the informal Ivy league and all are members of the Eastern Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Purpose of Loop
With the exception of Brown, all are members of the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball and Baseball leagues, but the agreement announced today marks the initial entrance of the institutions into a formal football organization.

"In the total life of the campus, emphasis upon intercollegiate competition must be brought into harmony with the essential educational purposes of the institution," the agreement said.

"In general terms, the problem is one of avoiding the well-recognized excesses of intercollegiate football while retaining and enhancing the values which are known to lie in the sport."

George A. Brakeley, vice president of Princeton university and spokesman for the signatory institutions, explained that the governing boards are solely interested in the promotion of education and research in this country and that they view properly conducted intercollegiate football as a helpful phase of college education.

ARMY GETS ALL BUT TWO VOTES

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Army's 61-0 romp over Penn convinced all the grid writers, except two, that the Cadets are the number one college football team in the nation. The two dissenters of the 83 scribes participating in the Associated Press' weekly poll liked Alabama and the University of California at Los Angeles.

Only once before, when Notre Dame was the unanimous choice two years ago, had an eleven so completely dominated the voting. Now even the coaching profession is joining the chorus of praise for the uncrowned champions whose only remaining game is their December 1 date with Navy.

Navy retained enough backing off an easy win over Wisconsin to hold second place despite strong challenges by Alabama and Indiana.

The Bama Crimson tide drubbed Vanderbilt, 71-0, but remained in third position ahead of Bo McMillin's "por il boys" from Indiana as the first four clubs retained their relative positions.

Notre Dame bounced back from the Army debacle to whip Northwestern and advanced from seventh to fifth, followed by the Oklahoma Aggies and Ohio State, each of whom moved up two steps to sixth and seventh.

Michigan regained a place in the top 10 off its victory over Purdue, moving into eighth position. St. Mary's tumbled from fifth to ninth on its upset loss to UCLA and Texas advanced from 17th to tenth.

Penn and Holy Cross were dropped from the elite circle because of their respective drubbings by Army and Temple, the Crusaders falling from tenth to 23rd place.

TEMPLE LEADS PENN SCORING

(By The Associated Press)
The Temple University football machine led the Keystone state pigskin parade in scoring today and its point-getting ability was topped only by powerful Army and Navy in the east.

The Owls, who ended one of the most successful seasons in their history last Saturday by toppling unbeaten Holy Cross from the "perfect" class, have racked up 198 points in eight games.

Slippery Rock Teachers, although in action only four times sports the best defensive record among the state colleges. Its goal line has not been crossed once.

Sixteen Pennsylvania schools have already finished the 1945 grid campaign totaling 38 wins, 42 losses and four ties.

Pennsylvania and Penn State, two of the state's major eleven finish their schedules next week.

Top Puck Teams Lead Attendance

(By The Associated Press)
American hockey league attendance is edging toward the 400,000 mark with Buffalo and Hershey, the teams tied for the eastern divisional lead, setting the turnstile pace.

The Bisons have attracted 72,084 fans for eight home dates and Hershey is only a couple of thousand behind. Cleveland and Indianapolis are over the 60,000 mark. Providence has drawn 50,000 and St. Louis isn't far away.

New Haven, with small capacity and a last place team, has attracted 24,000, followed by Pittsburgh with 15,000.

Pittsburgh continues its road wanderings tonight when the Hornets invade St. Louis.

It is the only game in the circuit.

Tomorrow Pittsburgh returns home to take on Buffalo and New Haven invades Providence.

PENN FAVORED TO TURN BACK BIG RED TEAM

By JACK HAND
New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Now that Penn's dreams of grid grandeur have been exploded by Army, the Quakers can get down to the serious business of clinching the unofficial Ivy league crown by beating Cornell Saturday.

This most interesting clash on the east's final big football spurge of the season will find Penn heavily favored to turn back the Big Red from Ithaca.

Penn has been supreme in its own league all season, upending Columbia's previously unbeaten team, on the way to a title claim. With Bob Evans passing and Bob Deuber and Don Schneider scooting around the ends they carry a potent wallop behind their big line.

Columbia winds up its most successful season in years by engaging Dartmouth at Princeton.

Yale invades Princeton for the game the Tigers have been waiting for all year.

Colgate and Brown meet in another traditional contest, ordinarily played Thanksgiving morning but now slated for Saturday.

Penn State and Pittsburgh will play a rugged Pennsylvania ball game that won't decide any title but will provide plenty of the old "rock 'em and sock 'em" spirit. Another ancient rivalry will be renewed in the Lafayette-Lehigh fray.

Other eastern games are Swarthmore at Haverford, Boston U. at Harvard and Brooklyn at Kings Point Merchant Marines.

FORMER GI IS TOPS WITH 132

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—Walter Trojanowski, the University of Connecticut's star halfback, today had the nation's individual football scoring championship virtually sewed up with a total of 132 points.

In his first season since his return from the war, the 23-year-old former soldier from Bridgeport, Conn., galloped for 22 touchdowns in eight games.

Only Army's touchdown twins, Glenn Davis and Felix (Doc) Blanchard, stood a chance of overhauling the UCONN ace and it was a remote possibility at that. Davis and Blanchard have racked up 96 points apiece and have only the Navy contest December 1 in which to make up the 36 points difference. Davis was the nation's top scorer last year with 120 points.

CUBS PACKED WITH PLAYERS

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP)—The search for baseball talent, a tough task for major league clubs in wartime, is a simple assignment for the Chicago Cubs this fall.

As of today, there are 47 players on the Cubs roster. There'll be more—probably another dozen or so—added to that squad of more than five nine-man teams before the National league champions open their spring training season at Catalina Island in February.

Indications are that the spacious ground of the island in the Pacific to which the Cubs are returning for the first time since 1940, will be swarming with more players than trained at any two major league camps in wartime.

Manager Charlie Grimm, who directed a parade of Cub pitchers to the mound in a couple of world series games against Detroit last October, will be knee deep in hurriers. There are 21 of them on the roster, including three back from navy service.

Grimm won't have enough catchers to allow each pitcher a private receiver, but there will be at least nine at the training camp.

Twelve infielders are listed and as a starter Grimm has seven outfielders on the rolls.

day playing with the Philadelphia Eagles here in a National football league game against the Washington Redskins, coach Earl (Greasy) Neale announces. The Eagles can tie Washington for first place in the Eastern division of the pro league if they defeat the Redskins.

Charles Town Track Will Open Dec. 1st

Charlestown, West Va., Nov. 20—The final 19 days' racing of the 1945 eastern season along the Atlantic seaboard opens here December 1.

By offering $6,600 in purses opening day, President Albert J. Boyle of the Charlestown Jockey club set an all-time high for the state. Three $1,200 purses will be offered weekly. In addition, at least one $1,000 purse will be programmed daily. More than 300 horses will be shipped here from Pimlico when Maryland's 1945 season ends November 30.

Post time has been set at 1 p. m. Eight races will be run daily, with all fields being limited to eight starters, except in handicaps.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Nov. 20 (AP)—The formal announcement by eight college presidents legitimating football's "Ivy League" seems to indicate that the boys are liable to trip over the ivy almost any time. . . . That idea of bringing competition "into harmony with the essential education purposes" hardly would come from an athletic director who has to fill those seats in the stadium every Saturday. . . . The same goes for the ban on "sectional or other championships." . . . As for the eligibility rules, to be governed by "wise and flexible administration in the setting of mutual respect and good faith," the ivy schools are pretty sound in that respect, although the result sometimes is to make the football coach work overtime to see that the boys qualify for scholarships or jobs. . . . He can't go out and tell a prospect just what he has to offer.

ONE VIEWPOINT

An interesting angle on the league was provided a few weeks ago when Columbia's Lou Little was expounding his views on building up the circuit. . . . "It is a good thing for football in the east and probably all over the country to have the 'ivy league' as strong as possible," said Lou. "No body should try to come down to the level of the rest but we should all try to build up to the level of the strongest team." . . . Wonder which direction the move will be now that the ivy league has gone formal?

SHORTS AND SHELLS

Russian soccer fans are chuckling over that 10-1 licking their "dynamo" team handed Cardiff, Wales, the other day. The Russians have only been playing the game a few years and seldom have won by such a lopsided score. . . . Army offered Villanova the opening date on its 1946 schedule but the Wildcats, thinking of those 167 points in two years, are hesitating to accept.

State College, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP)—Penn State will meet both Army and Navy—in wrestling. The mat squad has started to drill under Coach Paul Campbell in preparation for the first of five dual meets against the Navy at Annapolis on Jan. 12.

The team's hopes for a successful season were bolstered by the return from service of Sam Harry. Eastern intercollegiate 128-pound champion in 1942. The Clearfield, Pa., boy now tips the scales at 140, but expects to be down to his regular weight before the initial meet.

Former Boy Leader Of Gangs Hunted

Oklahoma City, Nov. 20 (AP)—Matt Kimes, notorious boy leader of outlaw gangs of the 1920's was believed to be hiding somewhere in the hilly fastnesses of eastern Oklahoma today and officers scoured the region but admitted the trail was growing colder.

Kimes, charged with robbing the First State bank of Morton, Tex., of $17,000 Sept. 5 while on leave from the Oklahoma penitentiary, had left no definite trace since eluding capture after taking $1,200 from a We-woka, Okla., theater manager Sunday night.

COINCIDENTALS

Benton, Ill., Nov. 20 (AP)—Two women, each bearing the name of Mrs. Earl Sanders, who live on the same street in the same block and each the mother of three sons, occupy the same ward in nearby West Frankfort's Union hospital. Within the same hour each woman gave birth to a daughter. Dr. G. G. Moore was the busy attending physician for both women.

Soldiers Unhurt In Train Deraillment

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP)—Five cars of a troop train were derailed near Hamburg, Pa., but none of the 86 men and officers were injured, he Reading company said today.

The train was en route to Indian-owned Gap Military Reservation last night. Cause of the derailment was not determined immediately.

A spokesman for the railroad said another train was dispatched to the scene and that the men were taken to the army base.

FISH GOES FISHING

Port Isabel, Tex., Nov. 20 (AP)—William Bledsoe, 74, is nursing four broken ribs, the result of an encounter with a six-foot tarpon. Bledsoe was sitting in his skiff fishing when something hit him so hard it knocked him out of the boat. When he climbed back in he found a 125-pound tarpon flopping around. Coast Guardsmen who saw the incident and went to Bledsoe's assistance verified the fact that the fish had not been hooked. It was believed it struck at the reflection in the water of the outboard motor.

Alarm bells were devised as health precautions to ring at the exits of some atomic research laboratories whenever a person passed whose clothing or body had been affected by radioactive raditions.

APARTMENT FOR BOOKS

My bookcase long has seemed to me
A great apartment house to be,
Wherein my lifetime friendships
dwell,
Awaiting me to ring the bell.
Each shelf, a floor where friends abide!
Wordsworth and Shelley, side by side;
Bob Burns and Shakespeare.
Call, they say,
Whenever you may chance this way.
Some friends are old and some are young;
Some gifted with the witty tongue;
Some strong in faith, in wisdom deep
To aid and comfort all who weep.

As in some building's inner hall,
The names appear upon the wall,
So I, the varied titles read
To find the friend whose help I need.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FLOATING GOLDS AND CRIMSONS

I look out from my library window and see, in the air floating bits of gold and crimson—Autumn's festival distributing its glory to the four winds. And what an inspiring spectacle it is! Soon the branches of the trees will be bare. Soon Winter's winds will be singing their songs of loss and loneliness.

Seasons come and go, but memories remain. Memories of Springtime, of Summer's gifts of fragrance and beauty, of Autumn's harvests and incomparable examples of color and natural glory. Little do we realize how each one of these natural phenomena affects our personal lives. But each does. Each colors and influences all our activities and all our thoughts. Each gives us the zest to live.

Each year of our lives the Seasons emphasize the greatness of God's creative wisdom. Nothing is wasted in nature. There is a renewal forever going on. These gold and crimson leaves that float in the Autumn air, and settle to the ground, rustling and singing among themselves, finally melt away into the good earth, to become nourishment for future Springtimes.

How many a time, in days long gone, our bare feet happily and thrillingly ploughed among these fallen leaves. And how full of fragrance was the air that the burning piles emitted! Never is such a memory lost or forgotten.

As I look out upon the remaining leaves that move among themselves, it almost seems as though there were a final great convention going on among them, each leaf whispering its final message to the other before entering upon its final resting place upon the bosom of the welcoming earth—its Mother.

The floating of these gold and crimson leaves of Autumn time resolve themselves, in my mind, into what I please to call a religious phantasy, for each reluctant leaf that leaves its place among its own upon the tree branch, seems to bear upon its back the breath of the great Creator—voyaging eternalward.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Other People's Ideas."

Store In Family 116 Years Is Sold

Gettysburg, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP)—The saga of the Saeger general store, 116 years in the making, in ended. The little store, operated by members of the family since 1829, has been sold to a stranger.

Daniel Saeger, for whom this Crawford county community was named, brought the store originally. Now his last three heirs, all women, have sold it to J. C. Bonzer of Pittsburgh.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Telephone Exchange: W. E. Ziegler and C. A. Timmons are undertaking to arrange a telephone exchange in this place. The purpose is to run to Littlestown and there connect with Hanover and Westminster. As the latter place has connection with Baltimore, it would place Gettysburg in communication with all the large cities. A canvass is being made of the route to ascertain the number of probable subscribers. Give the scheme your assistance.

Named In His Honor: Conductor M. A. Garvin, of the Reading Railroad, has a son about three months old. His name is Henry Watterson Garvin, named in honor of the distinguished editor of the Louisville (Ky.) "Courier Journal." Last week the boy's parents received as a present from Mr. Watterson a solid silver cup, lined with gold, and a silver spoon. The spoon has his initials and on the cup is the inscription "Henry Watterson Garvin from Henry Watterson." Mr. Garvin met Mr. Watterson last February during the blizzard, when they were snow-bound a few miles north of town.

Marriages: Adams-Currens: Nov. 10, at Heldersburg, by Rev. Jacob C. Pease, James A. Adams, of Tyronet township, to Miss Laura B. Currens, of Highland township.

Hughes-Studebaker: Nov. 13, in Gettysburg, by Rev. Father H. S. Christ, Arthur P. Hughes to Miss Sydney E. Studebaker, both of this place.

King-Arentz: Nov. 12, at Littlestown, by Rev. W. C. Wire, John J. King to Miss Rosa Arentz, both of this county.

Hamilton-Powell: Sept. 12, at Pine Swamp, by Geo. Winand, John F. Hamilton, of Huntington township, to Miss B. Agnes Powell, of Franklin township.

Routzahn-Slaybaugh: Nov. 19, at the bride's home in Huntington township, by the Rev. W. G. Slifer, Gideon B. Routzahn to Miss Maggie J. Slaybaugh, daughter of G. F. Slaybaugh.

Weikert-Flemming: Nov. 20, at U. B. parsonage in this place, by Rev. D. W. Sollenberger, Albert D. Weikert, of Greenmount, to Miss Mazie Fleming, of this place.

Snyder-Shanefelter: Nov. 5, at Littlestown, by Rev. F. S. Lindaman, John S. Snyder to Miss Mary L. Shanefelter, both of Mount Pleasant township.

Local Miscellany: M. E. Stallsmith has the contract for the erection of the fence about the college athletic field.

The Sunday trains have been discontinued on this branch of the Reading railroad.

C. C. Sefton has placed in his barber shop three of the latest improved barber chairs.

S. B. Gochenauer will remove from the store stand at Round Hill to one at Bendersville. William Malaun, of Hampton, has rented the Round Hill stand.

Girl Wanted: To learn Dress-making. Inquire of Miss Ella Carver, Balto. street.

Personal Mention: Miss Virginia O'Neal is visiting Miss Riach, of Baltimore.

Charles M. Young had a fine exhibition of water colors and oil paintings on Thursday afternoon and evening at his studio, in the Star and Sentinel building. The same pictures, about 60 in number, are now on exhibition at Veerhoff's art store in Washington, D. C.

Miss Beulah Tipton is visiting Miss Grace Philippy, in Chambersburg.

Samuel Weigle and wife, of Granite Hill, and George Herbst and wife, Gettysburg, recently visited friends in Frizellburg, Md.

Harry Yeagy and wife, and Edward Menchey and wife, of this place, spent a few days last week at the same place.

W. S. Schroeder and wife were in York last week.

Miss Nora Smoot, of Roanoke, Va., is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Garvin.

Miss Rose Codori and Miss Annie Moriarity are visiting friends in Philadelphia and New York.

Mr. Charles T. Cassell and young son, of Westminster, Md., spent Sunday with Frank Mitten.

Mrs. William Givler has returned from a three months' trip to New York.

Mrs. J. Frank Brinkerhoff and daughter, of Philadelphia, are visiting relatives near town.

Hart Gilbert, Esq., is in Philadelphia, acting as a Grand Juror in the United States Court.

The Meade Statue: The second equestrian statue, that of General George Gordon Meade, erected by the Pennsylvania Monument Commission, was placed in position last week. It is one of three to Meade, Hancock and Reynolds, authorized by the Legislature when it appropriated $100,000 for that purpose in the session of '92-'93.

Mr. Bush-Brown, the sculptor, is a nephew of the great Brown who executed the splendid statue—the first done in this country—of Washington, which stands in Union Square, New York city. He studied with his uncle, whose adopted son he was, and then in Paris and Italy. He did the Buffalo Hunt for the World's Fair, which he designed in Paris. This is Mr. Bush-Brown's first important statue.

REDS CHARGE IMPERIALISM AGAINST U. S.

By SPENCER MOOSA

Chungking, Nov. 20 (AP)—Chinese Communist troops were reported invading Manchuria's capital in force today in a race with rival Nationalist soldiers, already 35 miles inside the vital industrial territory after a breakthrough in the south.

The China Times declared that 4,000 Communist troops had entered the capital of Changchun, but failed to say whether Russian occupation forces still were in the city.

The Times also asserted without confirmation elsewhere that new conferences between China and Russia on the tense Manchurian situation would begin soon, either in Moscow or Chungking.

Unofficial reports in Chungking said the Russians had laid down 20 conditions which the Nationalists must meet before being allowed to fly troops into Manchuria, making an overland drive necessary.

Chungking newspapers asserted this drive already was well under way, with Nationalist troops racing 23 miles almost unopposed beyond positions a dozen miles inside Manchuria to within 190 miles of the great industrial city of Mukden.

"American Colony" With these well-equipped, American-trained troops apparently on the loose after having broken through the Chinese Communist line along the great wall, the Communist press leveled new charges at the United States.

The United States is converting China into "an American colony," the Communist Daily News charged. The activities of the American forces have enraged all patriotic Chinese, the newspaper asserted. It compared it with the "imperialism" of the British in India, French in Indochina and the Dutch in the Netherlands East Indies.

Noticeably, the criticism was issued swiftly after the other Chungking papers had reported the overnight Nationalist advance along the Tientsin-Mukden railroad.

The Nationalists occupied the railroad town of Suichung, 35 miles northeast of Shanhaikwan, where they had sprung the Communist defenses at the anchor of the great wall and moved into Manchuria.

Advances Admitted The advance followed by a day Communist admission that the Nationalists were 12 miles up the railroad and had expanded their southern beachhead to 30 miles, taking the town of Funing.

Occupation of Suichung brought the Nationalists to within 65 miles of Chinghsien, important railroad junction 125 miles southwest of Mukden.

A Communist spokesman here asserted that the Nationalist approach to Chinghsien, where the railroad branches out in three directions into interior Manchuria, would see the "first big battle" for control of Manchuria.

Central government leaders were worried by reports the Communist forces had occupied practically all air fields which had been held by the Russians in southern Manchuria.

The same dispatches reported the Communists had taken over the air field at Changchun, Manchurian capital about midway between the big industrial centers of Mukden and Harbin.

Snow Fighting Plans Readied

Harrisburg, Nov. 20 (AP)—The state Highways Department, recalling last winter's snows, made plans "for the worst" in laying down its 1945-46 snow and ice removal program. L. J. Curran, chief maintenance engineer, said today.

"The first snow last winter came December 1 and continued through to March," Curran recalled, "but we don't expect anything like that again."

He reported the department has 1,040 trucks and tractors of its own available right now and plans to rent an additional 1,000 trucks and perhaps a hundred tractors depending on conditions.

Erection of 13,000,000 feet of snow fence along state highways started Nov. 1 while in addition 25 to 30 miles of natural fence—shrubs and trees—protect other highway stretches from drifting snow.

As to personnel, the regular 10,000 men on the department's payroll will be available for snow removal and churning as the need develops in the coming winter to be supplemented by other workmen should conditions warrant.

Stock piles of cinders are being stored at strategic points, he added, to keep highways open during ice storms.

The Highways Department spent approximately $7,300,000 clearing highways last winter while the average cost of winter programs runs about $3,000,000.

WARS HAD PART IN OBSERVANCE OF THANKS DAY

Harrisburg, Nov. 20 (AP)—Pennsylvania has marked Thanksgiving Day at various times since 1711 but the earlier observances came in almost every month except November.

Warren J. Daniel, director of the commonwealth's land office, dug through the ancient records preserved in the department of internal affairs to find the oldest observance of the holiday in Pennsylvania August 15, 1711.

"That day," he reported, "was set aside by Queen Anne (of England) to ask for divine guidance prior to sending ships with an armed force to recover that part" of North America called Canada.

Thirty-five years later Governor George Thomas of provincial Pennsylvania set July 24, 1746 as a day to give thanks for the victory of Britain over Scotland, France and Spain.

In 1775, June 19 was made a day of meditation and prayer in connection with the developing French and Indian war and in 1777, April 3 was proclaimed by the supreme council of Pennsylvania as a day "to ask the assistance of providence in the most just and necessary war"—the American Revolution.

The following year, December 13 was a day of thanksgiving in connection with France's entry into the war as an American ally and in 1780, President Joseph Reed of Pennsylvania set aside both April 26 and December 7 as Thanksgiving days.

Daniel said a movement was started in 1827 by Mrs. Sarah J. Hale for establishment of a definite day for thanksgiving.

"Each year she would write to

PURGE ORDERED IN SMITH PLAY

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP)—"Certain objectionable lines" were ordered removed from the stage play "Strange Fruit," an adaptation from the Lillian Smith novel of the same name. If the show is to finish the second week of a 14-day run here.

Henry Starr Richardson, chairman of the city board of theatre control, insisted on the deletion following protests from a number of Philadelphia ministers. He said lines in the scene which shows a minister telling a white boy to give a negro girl money to marry another negro after the white boy had gotten her into trouble would have to be removed from the play.

Miss Smith, who wrote the best-selling story of a white man's love for a negro girl, said "any changes that will injure the play or hurt its real structure or its integrity as an adaptation from the book will not be made."

The Rev. Melvin M. Forney, pastor of the third Baptist church, said the play is "direct attack upon the Evangelical Christian church."

Miss Smith, however, denied she was "criticizing the church. I'm only criticizing the hypocrisy in it."

The president and the various governors asking that the last Thursday of November be set aside," he said. "By 1859, her efforts had established the day she advocated in thirty states."

SOME WHISKEY "UNRATED"

Harrisburg, Nov. 20 (AP)—Partial lifting of Pennsylvania's whiskey rationing program was in prospect today following announcement by the state liquor control board that it will place 125,000 cases of whiskey on unrestricted sale in state stores Nov. 26.

Board Chairman Frederick T. Gelder said the unrated whiskey includes some "pretty well known" brands but that restrictions must remain on bonded whiskies and some other brands because there "is still not enough available to go around."

The board, however, continued two-week ration periods through the winter holiday season and upped the individual allotment from a fifth to a fifth of a gallon and a pint for those starting Monday, December 10, and Monday, December 24.

The new ration periods will be: First, Monday, Nov. 26, through Saturday, Dec. 8; second, Monday, Dec. 10, through Saturday, Dec. 22; and Monday, Dec. 24, through Saturday, Jan. 5. For rationed whiskies, customers will use War Ration Book Three as before.

During all three periods, the board added, licensees will be allotted 90 per cent of their former normal purchases. Rationing restrictions do not apply to brandy, rum, gin or wines or any state store merchandise other than whiskey.

Judge And 3 Sons Must Stand Trial For Defrauding U. S.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP)—Former Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson and his three sons must stand trial on a charge of conspiring to obstruct justice and defraud the U. S. government.

Motions to quash conspiracy indictments against the four men were denied yesterday by Judge William F. Smith of Newark, in U. S. district court here.

The indictments against the 72-year-old Johnson, who resigned his seat as senior jurist on the Pennsylvania middle district bench in the face of a congressional investigation into his official conduct; his sons—Albert W., Jr., Miller A., and Donald M. and five other persons were returned by a federal grand jury several months ago.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 1 pint a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

ARMY MEETING SCHEDULE FOR TROOP RETURNS

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—The army said today that despite strikes and shorter working hours more soldiers have been brought home in six months than were in the whole of World War I's AEF.

A War Department statement said that 2,470,880 were returned from overseas from V-E Day May 8 to November 2 and that discharges totaled 3,114,000 up to November 16. Armistice Day strength in World War I was 3, 673, 888, and of these 1,929,760 were overseas. Their return was not completed until April, 1920.

The department said it expects 502,000 men to reach eastern ports and 195,000 western ports this month. It expects 423,000 in the east and 306,000 in the west in December. Arrivals will taper off in January to 235,000 in the east, 223,000 in the west.

Dates Being Met

The statement added that "except for delays in turning around ships on both coasts because of strikes and shorter working hours, and the loss of some British transports," there would have been shipping enough to exceed withdrawal quotas by the end of the year. But, it said, the original "target dates" still will be met.

These are:

1. January 31, all troops back from Europe and the Mediterranean except 370,000 occupation soldiers and 300,000 needed to dispose of surplus property. The 300,000 will trickle back and all will be in the U. S. by June 30.

2. June 30, all troops back from the Pacific and other areas except occupation and garrison complements—leaving 400,000 in the Pacific, 100,000 in the other areas.

Big Transport Fleet

The last of 97 cargo ships being converted to troop carriers, the department continued, will be ready this week. This will give the army the use of 790 ships for transporting troops—253 troopships, 210 converted cargo carriers, 38 hospital ships, 178 assault transports and 111 warships.

No more cargo ships will be converted because by the time they could be made ready they would not be needed, the department explained. It expects to have all the shipping it needs in the Atlantic by January 1 and in the Pacific in April.

Terming the need for sleeping cars to move the men in this country still critical, the department said it plans to ask the Office of Defense Transportation to withdraw more cars from civilian use. It suggested this be done by raising the minimum trip length for which civilians may obtain Pullman accommodations from 450 miles to 500.

Near - Centenarian Is Back Home Again

Pittsburgh, Nov. 20 (AP)—Ninety-eight-year old Nelson Foster, who always has been interested in travel, set his anxious family at ease last night by calmly walking into their home after having been reported missing since 3 p. m. Sunday.

As he entered the door, his relatives gasped:

"Where have you been, Dad?"

With a twinkle in his eye, he replied casually:

"Oh, just out in the country."

Police, who had been notified of his absence, cancelled the "missing persons" report. They said Foster set a record in one respect—he is the oldest missing person on record here.

When Can Cop Fire Gun? Court Is Asked

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP)—The state lodge, fraternal order of police, wants the Pennsylvania superior court to rule on when a policeman can fire his gun.

The request was prompted on behalf of Police Chief William C. Duerr of Stowe township, Allegheny county, who was convicted on a charge of involuntary manslaughter in the death of two men he believed were automobile thieves. The victims were later proved innocent.

The fraternal order of police asked the court to help policemen "avoid entrapment and consequent bondage for doing that which they honestly believed to be their duty." Duerr, free on $10,000 bond, is appealing his conviction.

40-YEAR-OLD RECEIVERSHIP IS UNDER FIRE

By CHARLES B. HOLSTEIN

Washington, Nov. 20 (AP)—A Senate investigation may supplant an FBI inquiry into the 40-year-old receivership of the Pittsburgh, Shawmut and Northern railroad in Pennsylvania.

The railroad operates the Shawmut Mining company, whose miners at Force, Pa., recently protested sanitary conditions in the "company town."

Receivers of the railroad, meanwhile, have been ordered to "show cause" at a federal court hearing in Pittsburgh next Tuesday why they should not be removed. Senator Guffey (D., Pa.) in a statement in the Congressional Record, has called the case "a very gross abuse" of the bankruptcy laws.

Senate Probe Sought

This receivership would be included in a Senate investigation being sought by Chairman Wheeler (D., Mont.) and Senator Reed (R., Kas.) of the Interstate Commerce Committee into some 76 railroads now in insolvency proceedings, particularly those in receivership 12 years or more.

The Pittsburgh, Shawmut and Northern case was called to the Senators' attention by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Charles D. Mahaffie a few days before Wheeler and Reed submitted their resolution. During the hearings before Wheeler's committee on another bill affecting railroad receiverships, Wheeler cited the length of litigation in some cases and said:

Sees Fees As Reason

"Frankly, I think it's getting to be a scandal. The only reason I can see is that some receivers and lawyers want to draw down fees."

Reed added he was disturbed that some receiverships have run as much as 13 years and named several including the Frisco.

Mahaffie, a witness, replied: "I might point that the Frisco is a mere child compared to some railroads in receivership. For instance, the Pittsburgh, Shawmut and North-

The Justice Department has said the FBI entered the case after the department received a complaint the receivers had never filed a report to the court in 40 years.

It's a duty—not a sentence—to buy Victory Bonds.

He needs a ticket home ...

and your extra Bonds can provide it!

• You've loaned your Government the money to send him overseas. Now help bring him back.

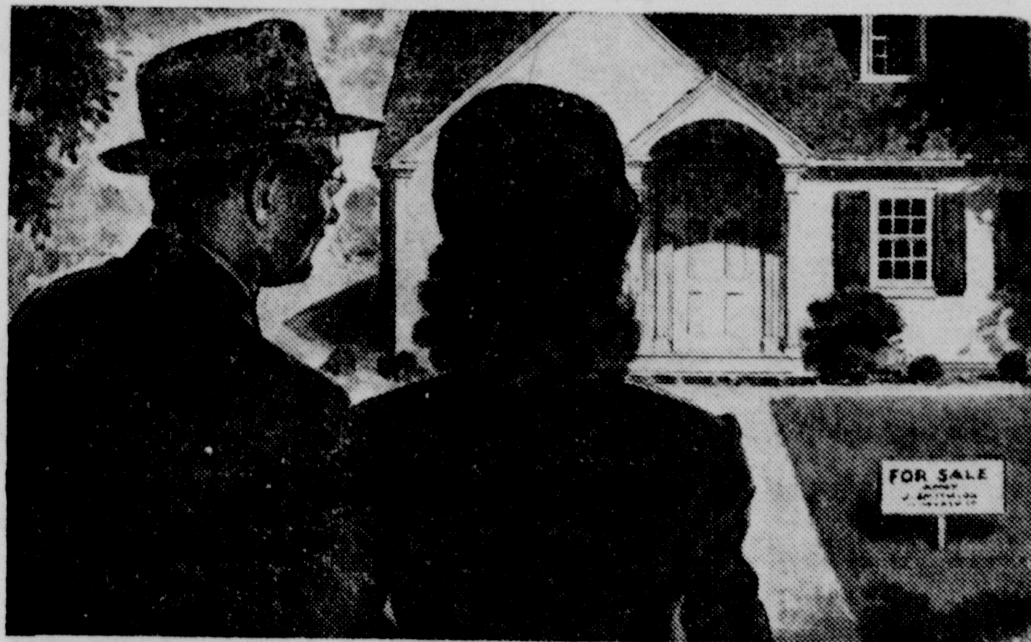

Feeding, housing, and giving medical care to millions of men, and transporting them home, is an expensive business.

And all of us want to give our fighting men the right start after they're home and ready to settle down again.

Seeing that they get education, loans to start their own businesses and all the other help that's due them under the G.I. Bill of Rights will cost billions of dollars.

Buy extra Bonds—to help make victory real for the men who won it!

You need a backlog of savings...

and your extra Bonds can provide it!

• It's been a great feeling, hasn't it, to have those War Bonds salted away, these last few years?

A feeling of security.

Let an emergency come. You can face it.

Now, when you buy extra Bonds, you're buying an extra cushion.

Something to tide you over, in uncertain times. Something to provide the extras you've always wanted, but never had the extra savings to buy.

Makes sense, any way you look at it, to put away some extra Bonds now—for the sake of the men who made victory possible—for your country's sake—for your own sake!

the indictment with these words: "The defendants with divers other persons are guilty of a common plan of conspiracy for accomplishment of crimes against peace—against humanity—war crimes not only against armed forces of their enemies but also against non belligerent civilian populations."

After reading five paragraphs of count two—titled "Crimes Against Peace"—the court recessed at 10:12 (GMT) for fifteen minutes.

During a recess, ropes were stretched to form a corridor through the courtroom through which American security guards—soldiers in shining white helmets—escorted several defendants to the latrine.

No Medals, Insignia

The 20 Nazi defendants were dressed in simple uniforms without medals or insignia of rank or in simple civilian suits donated from charity stores.

Through the reading of the counts Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Hitler's trigger man in the 1938 seizure of Austria, stared blankly through thick lensed spectacles as his role in the Nazi pre-war scheming for power was unfolded.

Hitler's henchmen were brought into the small, oak-paneled courtroom about 20 minutes before the opening of the trial, and faced their accusers with expressions ranging from defiance to indifference.

Hjalmar Horace Greely Schacht, former Reich economics minister, glared defiantly at the judges.

Former Nazi foreign minister Joachim von Ribbentrop stared into space, and at his side one time Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, former Nazi chief of staff, talked in a low voice with Nazi philosopher Alfred Rosenberg.

Spartan Breakfast

The once-mighty Nazi war leaders spent a quiet night and were wakened an hour earlier than usual for a spartan breakfast of oatmeal, bread and coffee before facing the Allied tribunal.

Guards formed a solid phalanx for nearly a quarter mile around the palace of justice in the bomb-battered city that once was the shrine of Hitlerism and now is the scene of an unprecedented trial to convict for all eternity the 12-year scourge of German aggression that sought to rule the world for a thousand years.

The accused German leaders were

Family Unpacks In 'Dream' Suite

Capt. Frank L. Lillyman, an Army paratrooper, smoking a fancy cigar, and his three-year-old daughter, Susan Jane, look on as Mrs. Lillyman unpacks in a New York hotel's (the Pennsylvania) most luxurious suite where, at the hotel's expense, they will enjoy all the comforts and service the captain dreamed about during two years overseas. The hotel offered to foot the bill when Lillyman wrote telling of his dreamed-of vacation and asking "how much?"

"reasonably calm," a guard reported, and some joked with attendants as they journeyed to the palace. Special guards were assigned to each defendant.

Twenty spotlights hang over the little chamber of justice. More than 300 newspapermen and radio commentators from five continents are on hand and photographers' booths rim the scene.

Everyone concerned with conducting the trial will be wearing headphones throughout the proceedings so that the multiplicity of languages may be filtered to them through translators. Military authorities have taken every precaution to prevent any weapons or firearms from being smuggled into the courthouse.

A German attorney disclosed that Goering's counsel, on behalf of the entire defense group, intended to offer a joint declaration challenging the jurisdiction of the international court. This was expected after the indictment reading was completed and the defendants had entered pleas.

The Nazis have had since October 18 to read and study the indictment, filed against them at a court session in Berlin.

But its repetition in human accents in Nuernberg's palace of justice under the glare of spotlights assumed new dramatic power.

Goering persisted in out-gesturing his Nazi cronies and in retaining the courtroom's interest. He leaned forward to kibitz over the shoulder of a German lawyer. He scratched his nose vigorously. He held his heavy jaw with his fist.

The rest of the defendants merely looked bored.

Fritz Sauckel, who was Nazi chief of foreign slave labor, peered at the packed press gallery.

Hess, toward the end of the morning session, started a long and animated conversation with Ribbentrop. Goering, sitting next to them, ignored both.

The defendants exhibited their greatest solemnity while a portion of the indictment was read describing the murder of 10 million Nazi victims in Europe.

First Steps In Beekeeping

One strong colony of bees will produce more honey than several weak colonies. To illustrate, a colony of 60,000 bees produce more honey than four colonies of 15,000 bees each. Here is an important principle in successful beekeeping. It should be stressed frequently.

Bees must be kept busy. The instant they fill a hive with comb and honey, they start to swarm. A swarming colony then divides its working force into two groups, thereby forming two weaker colonies. The solution is to keep hives supplied with "supers" and thus provide plenty of room for continued work. The busy bee must never see the end of its task.

Bees demand plenty of fresh pollen on which to feed. Tests show the average life of a bee fed on pure honey and fresh pollen is slightly more than 24 days, while a bee fed on honey alone lives only about 16½ days.

Alsike clover, alfalfa, sweet clover, white clover and red clover rank well ahead of all other flowering plants as sources of nectar. Too, these plants produce a honey flavor popular among consumers.

Until 15 to 20 years ago considerable honey was marketed in comb form, either as "chunk" honey or in sections. In the last few years less than 15 percent of commercial honey reaches consumers in the comb. Beekeepers have discovered larger profits through increased production by extracting liquid honey and saving the comb for bees to point it is well to consider that bees, like farm livestock, are measured in productive value mainly by their breed quality.

Every person interested in beekeeping should write the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Office of Information, Washington 25, D. C., for a free copy of Circular 702—Productive Management of Honeybee Colonies.

Thousands of persons previously unacquainted with the fine flavor and healthful benefits of honey in their diets are discovering this delightful food during the present sugar scarcity. It is safe to predict that demands for honey will increase rapidly on the future horizon of agriculture.

The editor urges readers who have any questions on bees and apiculture in general to write him about their problems and plans.

The MODERN Gas Range Is preferred by—

Our Finest Hotel and Restaurant Chefs and

The American Housewife

because of its:

Efficiency
—that permits fast, work-saving preparation of nutritious meals.

Economy
—whether you are interested in savings in your household budget or in profits in restaurant operations, Gas is the preferred kitchen fuel.

Speed
—Gas gives instant, maximum heat—no waiting.

Accurate Automatic Control
—Gas is the most precisely controllable of all fuels—it can be throttled to the temperature you want—not just turned "on," "off" or "in-between."

Cleanliness
—as important in a public kitchen as to the housewife. The modern Gas Range is clean in action and is easily kept spic and span.

Perfect Results
—Your modern Gas Range turns out the most delicious, appetite-tempting dishes possible.

Long Life and Carefree Service
—no expensive parts to replace in your Gas Range, nothing to wear out or burn out.

It all adds up to the fact that among large scale kitchen operators the trend is definitely to Gas. Too, that's why more American homes cook with Gas than any other fuel. The smart housewife, that splendid cook, knows that Gas is the unsurpassed kitchen fuel.

Consult your Gas Appliance Dealer or check with your Gas Company. Even though you may not be able to secure the Gas Range you want immediately, you'll get it sooner if you leave your order now.

written as if Thanksgiving happened yesterday:

Plymouth, Mass.—This town settled back to a normal workaday routine today, after a week of feasting and rejoicing to mark the harvesting of its first crops.

Unexpected guests at the celebration, first of its kind held here since the colonists landed in December of last year, were 90 Indian braves who accompanied the invited Chief Massasoit.

This sudden addition to the Pilgrim table brought a drain on the food supply, which the Indians solved themselves by capturing five deer to add to the menu.

After almost a year of hardship and short rations, one of the principal features of the celebration, of course, was food.

The 50 colonists—all that remain from the more than 100 who originally set out on the Mayflower—were divided into households.

Over each household presided a Pilgrim mother skilled in the culinary art, whose responsibility it was to keep the pewter plates filled.

The menu included oysters, ducks, geese, roast venison, turkey, partridge, barley loafs and cakes of Indian meal.

The game supply was obtained by four hunters sent out by Governor William Bradford. They were lucky enough to find in one day enough game to last the entire colony for a week.

Although both the long hard winter and the tang of the autumn air made the townspeople thankful for such plenty, there were other reasons of rejoicing.

Peace had been made with the Indians. The beaver trade is under way.

There have not been any serious illnesses for several months. And there are 11 houses in Plymouth—four of them for the common use.

In addition, the regular weekly food ration, formerly consisting of a peck of meal from the stores of the Mayflower, which left Plymouth in April of this year, has been supplemented with a peck of maize.

The 20 acres of corn, planted with the advice and assistance of the Indian brave Squanto, were successfully harvested before the celebration, at which Captain Miles Standish staged a military review.

Less successful were the six or seven acres of English wheat, barley and peas—a loss which Governor William Bradford attributes either to bad seed, a late season or some other unknown defect.

Chapter 7

(Sunday 8:10 a. m. to 9:58 a. m.)

"Wake up! Wake up!"

The words went on and on, echoing through Julia's head. She opened her eyes, then closed them again. Her head was a whirl of buzzing pain.

"Julia! Wake up! The police are here again. The guard was knocked out last night. You have to wake up."

It was Virginia's voice and her usual cool tones were anxious.

Slowly, tortuously, memory brought the events of the night before into Julia's aching head. She was in her own bed again and that was queer. She had gone down in the foyer and that was the last thing she knew.

"My head hurts."

"At least you can talk and that's some relief," Virginia said. "I'll get you some aspirin."

She went into the bathroom and Julia saw she had put on a sport skirt and sweater of hers and that they were both too small. Where had Virginia been last night when she had tried to find her?

She didn't have a chance to ask her. Gertrude, the maid who did the cleaning and lived out, knocked briefly and entered.

"There's police here that wants to see madam right away," she announced, gasping a little.

Julia sat up, and her throbbing head seemed too heavy to hold erect. When Virginia came with the aspirin and a glass of water, she took two tablets and drank the water, then sank back down.

"I'm sorry. My head hurts so I can't get up."

She thought the two women looked at her curiously. They both went out of the room but Virginia was back soon.

"Who is your doctor, Julia? If you don't have a doctor the police will say you're faking. If you'll recall you didn't looked dazed with grief last night."

"Doctor Wandell," She spoke the name without thinking and memory of the man sitting beside Jerry with quiet solicitude gave her a peace that calmed the jagged questions piercing her sore head. She closed her eyes.

Seconds went by—this time like punctured balloons, flat and small. She dozed and dreamed. She awakened and lay unthinking. At last she was aroused by the entrance of Dr. Wandell. He sat beside her and took her pulse.

"Something happened." It was a statement.

"Yes. Some one struck me on the head last night when I went into the foyer. But I woke up in bed. Isn't that odd? Her voice had only a mild curiosity. The terror of the early morning seemed vague.

He bent over her, his long fingers exploring her head. She winced when he touched the right side close to the back. He sat in the chair again and held her hand.

"I think you'll be all right, my dear, and I'm not sure it is a good thing to tell the police. Virginia has told them that both of you slept in here and that she could have known if you had left the room. No one was here last night but you two and Moore and the detective who was left to watch the place has a bad concussion this morning. I wasn't told whether the police know why the guard was knocked out or not but Moore thinks the drawing room was searched. If you say you were in the foyer then neither you nor Virginia has an alibi. Evidently Virginia didn't hear you leave."

"She wasn't here."

His hand closed tightly over hers. "It's hard to know. I've seen the law do stupid things yet I've known of some brilliant detection. I think if we could play for time it would help."

"I'll tell them I slept hard all night," Julia told him with a weak smile.

"I believe that's best. Then they won't waste time trying to involve you. As it is you're the logical person to suspect and they'd neglect every other possibility."

"But surely I'd have no reason for knocking out the detective," she protested.

His eyes grew soft.

"Oh, you poor innocent child! Don't you know they suspect you of murdering Robey?"

Incredulity and fright struggled for a hold within her. It was preposterous that any one should think that she would kill Robey. At the same time she knew the doctor was right.

"But I wasn't near him when it happened."

His thin lips pressed grimly together.

"You don't think I was?"

"No. I want to help you, too, and I have to protect some one else. You will be in less danger if you say nothing—tell nothing that is at all possible to keep."

She started to sit up when a sharp knock sounded on the door.

Doctor Wandell opened the door. It was Inspector Venable looking very young and very stern. His dark grey suit with a double breasted coat that hung negligently from bulky shoulders contrasted sharply with the doctor's sartorial perfection.

"It is imperative that I see Mrs. Baker at once."

"For a few minutes. She's in a highly nervous state."

"It won't take me long," the Inspector said grimly. "Now if you will leave."

"Leave? Oh, no. I have to watch her condition."

"Doctor Wandell, for a person who has been practicing only two years, you overdo the specialist role," said Venable.

"All right. You win this time, Inspector. But use your head. I can help you."

"You've helped too much already."

The doctor smiled slightly, gave Julia a meaningful glance and left. This time, Julia thought, the Inspector had made an enemy.

Greek Premier's Cabinet Resigns

Athens, Nov. 20 (AP)—The cabinet of Greek Premier Panayotis Kanelopoulos resigned today.

Kanelopoulos, vice president of the Greek cabinet-in-exile during the war and former minister of finance and reconstruction, became premier on Nov. 1 on assignment from recent Archbishop Damaskinos, after a series of cabinet crises.

Government quarters attributed the cabinet collapse to recurrent economic troubles which took a turn for the worse with reports reaching Athens that the British government had turned down a Greek request for a rehabilitation loan.

Uneasiness had prevailed since Hector McNeill, British undersecretary for foreign affairs, remained non-committal on financial aid commitments in a speech at the British embassy dinner Thursday.

The greatest wartime food production decreases were in the occupied areas of Soviet Russia, China, and the Dutch East Indies.

KOREAN GIRLS
PRAY TO STARS
TO SAVE MATES

By HAL BOYLE

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 20 (AP)—In this "land of the morning calm" you have to stay up all night on New Year's Eve or your eyebrows will turn gray. That, at least, is one of many popular beliefs.

Korea, waiting impatiently to essay modern statehood whenever the Russian and American troops depart, still leans heavily on her antiquity.

During 40 years of Japanese occupation and industrialization, the country has been westernized to a degree, but education has been limited to a small segment of the population. In the rural areas literally millions of illiterates still adhere to the old customs, fables and foibles.

The women of each household have an inner "hen room" which no male is allowed to enter.

The luckiest day of the year is July 7, because it is the seventh day of the seventh month.

Girls pray to the stars Altair and Vega to improve their sewing skills so they will not lose their husbands.

Easy Brush Off
Koreans have an easy way of disposing of unwelcome callers: whether you have a servant or not, the visitor arriving at your door must stand outside and bellow, "tell your master that so-and-so is calling."

If you don't like the guy or he bores you, you just raise your voice as if addressing your imaginary servant and bellow back, "tell him the master is not in."

The visitor gets the idea and scrams.

Another visiting custom is that no gentleman steps inside the house to visit your wife unless you, the master of the house, are there to keep an eye on him.

Also, when someone calls on you the first time he is required by custom to start right off by telling his full name, age, occupation and style of living. Then you know whether to give him the brush-off or break out your best bottle. Usually, however, in contrast with the Japanese system of dishing out tea to all comers, the Korean offers visitors tobacco.

Swear Before Goose
Boys don't marry at the age of 11 or 12 very much any more, nor girls at 14 or 15, as once was the practice.

Many a bridegroom, however, still swears his wedding oath at the bride's home in front of a wooden carving of a wild goose, brought by himself. Then the bride goes to his house on a palanquin, serves wine to his parents, and worships before the ancestral tablets.

The bridegroom takes her back to her house and spends three days there before bringing her to his old man's house, where they finally set up housekeeping. Dutiful brides then do all of the mother-in-law's housework.

Paid Mourners
When someone dies, an announcer climbs to the roof of the house and waves the clothes of the departed to make public his passing. Women mourners are hired for the funeral.

No cats are allowed in the room where the body is kept.

The funeral services are elaborate

DOCTOR ADMITS
SERUM FAILURE

Erie, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP)—Dr. Edward Drozeski, former Erie county prison physician, told a murder trial jury that two injections of "truth serum" failed to shake the story of Frank L. Bromley, Jr., 23, that he had nothing to do with the slaying of a sailor in 1942.

Dr. Drozeski went on the stand late yesterday as a defense witness, despite objections of the prosecution, in Bromley's trial on a charge of killing Chief Petty Officer Lloyd Wilkinson on Good Friday morning, 1942, along a lonely road near North East.

Questioned Six Hours
The "truth serum," said Dr. Drozeski, "is a powerful hypnotic drug. When it is given to a patient, and he is then questioned, the drug brings out things hidden in his subconscious mind."

Each time Bromley was given an and expensive. The pallbearers are paid to cry out their woe as they carry the coffin to the grave.

Many villagers believe a spirit they call Chansun has the power to drive away demons. They set up wooden images along the roadside to tickle Chansun's vanity and to persuade him to drive all evil spirits into the next township, which in turn has put up some images of its own.

On the sportive side of life, chess, archery and wrestling all are popular, but the grunt and groan industry's boys don't make the sort of dough they do in America.

injection, he was questioned six hours, the doctor said.

Defense Counsel Jesse Juillante asked:

"Did he at any time admit any knowledge of this crime?"

Dr. Drozeski answered:

"Absolutely not."

On the stand in his own defense, Bromley denied flatly that he had anything to do with Wilkinson's death. Speaking quietly, Bromley told of going to Titusville with three friends the night before the slaying, as said he returned to his boarding house about midnight and drank beer until he went to bed.

Earlier, Mrs. Rose White, of Corry, owner of the boarding house where Bromley lived, said she heard him arranging to go to Titusville that night. She said he and four other boarders returned early the morning of April 3 and declared she saw "nothing unusual" about his conduct then or thereafter.

Crop pests and plant diseases in the United States cause losses estimated to total more than $3,000,000 a year.
